SOLDIERS OF THE SOIL

In view of the expectation of there being so many "soldiers on the soil" this year, there will be no "Soldiers of the Soil" in 1919 as there were in 1918. The Y.M.C.A. which last year organized the S.O.S. movement under the direction of the Canada Food Board has decided not to make any national activity along this line in 1919. Last year in Alberta 2218 boys were enrolled to go as volunteers to work on farms and of these 1967 found employment in the province with 65 from other provinces under the direction of the Y.M.C.A.

This year, however, with so many soldiers returning having no jobs awaiting them, it was now thought right to organize the boys to take the place of returning soldiers who desire to work on the land. In view of the changed conditions it was not considered advisable, either to interfere with the boy's work at school. If, however any boys wish to go out on farms and if any farmers want boys to work the Y.M.C.A. stands ready to facilitate the enlistment and supervision of older boys who are needed on the farms.

NEEDLE-AND-THREAD TREE

There is a thread-and-needle tree in Mexico. It is the maquey tree, which furnishes a needle and thread, all ready for use. At the tip of each dark green leaf is a slender thorn needle that is carefully drawn from its sheath. At the same time it slowly unwinds the thread, a strong, smooth fibre attached to the needle and capable of being drawn out to a great length.

THE GUESTS AT THE FEAST

..A great king made a feast and invited everyone to it. He then sent out messengers to all the cities and towns in his kingdom, asking the people to come, and promising not only food but wealth.

In one town there was a strong, robust; and he loudly bemoaned the fact that his affliction would prevent him accepting the king's invitation.
But presently he heard that in the same town was a lame man, who was also grieving that he would be unable to go to the feast.

The blind man and the lame man, therefore, came to an arrangement by which the blind man could carry the lame man to the feast, the lame man directing him. So the man who had the sight but could not walk guided the man who could walk but could not see, and the two went together to the king's feast.

What is the cheapest breakfast you can have?

A roll on the grass.

Letters to the Editor.

Published by request of the Chauvin Auxiliary Red Cross SocietyRED CROSS WORK STILL NEEDED

"The cessation of hostilities will bring no relief for months to the Red Cross Society."

The Alberta Provincial Branch desires to direct the attention of all members and subscribers to the above statement made by the Chief Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society, overseas.

Many supporters of the Red Cross are under the impression that since the signing of the Armistice Red Cross work must of necessity have ceased. The guns may be silent, peace terms may be signed, but still the fight against pain and disease goes on. Perhaps never before in the history of the Red Cross, has the Society been so taxed as during the past few months, both overseas and at home.

(1) From France our Commissioner writes- "The calls have been incessant both for supplies and transport.
The cessation of hostilities coming as it has done at the end of a terrible summer's fighting, has left our hospitals both in France and in England, crowded with sick and wounded. Added to this, the frightful Epidemic has caused much suffering. At no time in the history of the Canadian Red Cross have we been able to give nor have we been called upon for so much assistance of all kinds. In two months 1,400 more cases of supplies were distributed, than were received.

Amongst the Refugees, the work of the Canadian Red Cross has been constant. It is no exaggeration to say that thousands of lives have been saved through the efforts of the Society.
The arrival of lorries loaded with quantities of nourishing food of all descriptions, seemed to these people like a miraculous intervention. The Red Cross paid special attention to children's food. Hundreds of cases of Condensed Milk, of Babies Food and of good soups were bought and distributed. Our Canadian Field Ambulance took over the care of the sick refugees, and issued to the women and children, supplies of Soup, Jellies and other suitable food.

(2) The Canadian Red Cross Commissioner who has sailed for Siberia, reports that in addition to comforts for the Canadian and British Forces, the needs of the Refugees, who are pouring into Siberia from Russia, are beyond description. Clothing and supplies of all kinds, are required to relieve the civil population. It is estimated that more than five million people are starving.

(3) At home, every day is opening new avenues of work before the Red Cross, and making fresh demands upon the funds of the society. Red Cross Visitors are now attached to all Military Hospitals, and every effort is being made to keep in touch with the men who are coming home, and to see that they lack no comfort or care.
Dependents of soldiers returning from overseas, are also being cared for by the Red Cross. Red Cross Nurses are being placed on trains carrying soldiers' dependents, and every effort is being made to extend a welcome to women and children, many of whom have never been in Canada before, and to provide for their comfort, on the tedious journey across the Continent.
Arrangements have been made whereby Red Cross representatives meet Ambulance Trains, and also the trains carrying dependents. Coffee, Fruit, Biscuits, Chocolate etc., are served to all men on these trains, while women and children are cared for and housing accommodation arranged with the Y.M.C.A. and patriotic organizations

(4) In addition to its other work, machinery of the Red Cross has during the past few months been operating to assist our own people at home, during the Influenza Epidemic, which has ravaged this province. Supplies to the value of over $30,000 have been distributed for the relief of our own people. In certain parts of the province, this relief work is still being carried on. Disease and suffering must be fought, and the health of our people restored. At the Provincial depot, work has been carried on both by day and night, and on Sundays as well as week-days, to provide the necessary relief amongst our own people.

Every member and supporter of the Red Cross is asked to bear in mind at this time, that funds are greatly needed with which to carry on work as outlined above. That supplies are still required in large quantities.

Branches having unmade materials on hand, should make these up immediately, and forward to the Provincial Depot, as all Hospital Garments and supplies will be needed.

Wool may be used either for knitting Socks or for making into Shawls, Caps or Scarves. Shawls may be from 40 to 60 inches square, plain stitch, knit loosely on large needles.

Samples of all kinds of Refugee and Relief Garments, may be had on application at the Provincial Depot.
Branches are requested to carry on their work as usual, and to make public the information contained in this Circular, that subscribers may know for what purpose their money is being used.

The advisability of continuing the Red Cross Society as a Peace organization, is under discussion at the present time, but before any decision can be made in regard to a Peace-time policy, the Society desires to impress upon every worker that until the last Canadian soldier who offered himself as a barrier between us and destruction, is discharged from hospital, we must march forward steadily under the banner of the Red Cross, and for the sake of those who have suffered on our behalf, there must be no slackening of interest or activity.

WRITES TO THE EDITOR

Leonard I. Northam or better known by the "Hat" ball tossers and his fellow workmen as "Nort" who, it will be remembered, worked for E. Churchman during the years 1915 and 1916, is getting along fine down in Medicine Hat and is now one of the foremost members of the News staff there. He reports that the farmers down there are expecting a dandy crop this year, but says that they will have a whale of a time to beat Chauvin as far as farming is concerned, but believe me, he says they, will have some dandy ball teams down here this year. He will very likely manage the same team as he did last year, The famous "Giants" who finished up in second place in the Junior League last year.

FARMERS URGED TO SOW
OATS AND BARLEY IN 1919

The Dominion Seed Branch sends out the following:

"The best information from Europe indicates that a considerable surplus of wheat will be carried over from the 1918 crop; and when the 1919 crop is harvested the world's surplus will probably be the greatest for any corresponding date in history. Unfavourable climatic conditions may however, reduce the crop; and the return of Central Europe and Russia to a staple condition, with safe payments may take care of the surplus. But in any case the world's price value of wheat is likely to be much lower than it is now.

"In the United States with their fixed price for wheat, farmers will naturally increase the wheat acreage and decrease the acreage of coars grain Canadian wheat must be marketed next season in competition with an million bushels. But is there not an opportunity for our grain growers to take advantage of the American reduction of coarse grain acreage. It is probable that oats and barley, where they can be successfully grown, may offer excellent profits to Canadian growers in 1919.

"Coarse grains will be needed as feed to meet the requirements of increased livestock production. Oats for milling, if of superior quality, and free from barley, command a premium on the market. Seed oats, free from frost injury, wild oats and other noxious weeds, will always be in good strong demand at good prices. Western farmers may well take these factors in to consideration in preparing for this season's grain crop."

FLOWER SEEDS AVAILABLE

There is a Small surplus of Caragana and flower seeds remaining on our hands. These seeds will be sent out free on application to the Experimental Station, Scott.

SEEDING DOWN PRACTICES

By M. J. TINLINE, B. S. A., Supt., Scott Experimental Farm

There are two methods of seeding down commonly practiced namely; with, or without a nurse crop. The latter plan will give heavier yields per acre but not sufficient to pay for the loss of a nurse crop. There is usually a marked increase in yield from seeding alone in the first crop harvested but the second and third years' yields are dependent on the moisture available. This applies also to the previous treatment given the soil.

Sown on summer-fallow the first crop is heavier than when sown on ploughed stubble land but no difference is noted in succeeding crops. One exception to this is where rotted barnyard manure is ploughed in. The manure invariably increases the yield of hay during the first two or three years.

The seed can be sown with any kind of grain and as early in the spring as wheat. Late seedings frequently fail to germinate, particularly is this true if the seed is not sown to a sufficient depth.

The ordinary grain drill can be used to sow the seed. When sown with the grain the grass seed can be sown two and one-half inches deep as the grain plants break the soil for the weaker grass plants. When sown without a nurse crop coarsely cracked barley mixed with the seed will aid in spreading the seed more evenly. Two inches is sufficient depth when sowing the grass alone

The quantity to sow varies with the kind of seed. Of Western Rye Grass or Brome Grass 12lbs., per acre is sufficient, Timothy 4½ lbs., Alfalfa or Sweet Clover 10lbs., Kentucky Grass for lawn 100lbs

In order to make certain the grass seed germinates it is usually a good plan to pack soils that do not contain too high a percentage of clay before and after seeding.

AN IRISHMAN'S LUCK

Our Serial Story

CHAPTER V MEETING THE SCHOOLMARM

Though Tom Dennis was quite free from any thought of personal vanity when he told Bert that he would make himself as "prtty" as h could for the trip to town, still th fact remains that he had taken vqry special pains for the occasion. The buckboard received a most unusual scrubbing and oiling, the old mare was groomed till her coat shone again, and Tom had not in reality half thee reason he thought he had for being dissatisfied with his own personal appearance. The Stetson hat, buckskin jacket and breeches and long boots, though all showing a good many signs of wear and weathwr admirably suited to his tall, well-set-up figure, and quite free from the ridiculous results so often achieved when an Old Country townbred youth strives to develope too suddenly into what he believes to be a typical Westerner.

The uninvited candour of numerous brothers and sisters had, at a very early age, robbed Tom of any native vanity in his looks, when on has been told so often and for so long a period that one's hair is red, one's mouth a perfect trap-door and one's face generally as plain as a pikestaff, it is difficult for the recipient of such brotherly and sisterly discipline to retain many illusions, though less prejudiced eyes would have admitted that had Tom been a girl, his hair would at the worst have been auburn, and that if his mouth was large it was full of expression. Even the home critics had to admit—among themselves though not to Tom—that he had splendid eyes—clera and steady in their gaze and swift to reflect the mirth, anger, or tenderness of his Celtic temperament.

The careless courage with which he htd undertaken to meet Miss Raye and her brother began rather to slip away when he found himself, early on the Saturday afternoon, walking up and down the Minnedosa station platform with Jim Hardie, waiting for the train from Winnipeg.

'I say, Jim, you've met the schoolmarm before and will have to do the introducing and that sort of thing—then I'll drop into the background with the brother and look after the baggage while you tell her our plans for going up to the settlement—tell her I am a rather shy young man but a very careful driver—you know.'

'Now that's too bad—too bad for sure, Tom, for you to go back on me like that; I thought you would do all that with your easy English ways, and just keep me out of the fuss.'

'Still, Jim, you've seen her before—besides you are a family man and look responsible—while, till you tell her different, she might think I was a kind of wild cowboy—there's Mr. Jordan coming up the platform—say, Jim, we'll get him to do the talking—a parson can speak to anybody—besides he's used to it. Good afternoon, Mr. Jordan, would you mind helping Mr. Hardie and myself out of a difficulty?'

'How are you, Tom? Glad to see you, Mr. Hardie,' and Mr. Jordan shook hands heartily with them both. 'Well, what's the trouble, Mr. Hardie, anything I can do for you?'

'Well, you see—' and Jim explained the situation.

'Oh, you need not worry about that, I'm not surprised at Mr. Hardie—but you, Tom—a too-diffident Irishman is something new—you remember the seven wonders of the world—and Tom Dennis, shy, makes the eighth.'

'You're as bad as Jim, sir, just because I try to carry by native modesty off with a bold face—'

'So you are not a "biuld Irishman"' —well, I've a good mind to take the young lady up to the Dingle myself, and then see how you'd be left—but seriously, I've come to meet the Rays myself—I met the sister when she was out West before, and she sent me a line to say they were coming, and I did not know what plans had been made. There's the train whistling at the Summit; I'll do the introducing, and so forth, and then take them both over to the Rectory for lunch, and you and Mr. Hardie can come round for them when you are ready to start out.'

'Now, that's just what I call fine,' said Jim, greatly relieved to be free from taking the lead in anything that savoured of formality and fuss. 'And Tom wants you to tell the schoolmarm that he's a careful driver—'

'Oh, I'll leave her to discover that for herself—it's a mate for his modesty—here the train comes—now don't you run away on me.'

With a second whistle of warning for the crossings and the clanging of the engine bell, the train, which had come along at a good speed round the spur of the hill into the valley, slowed up as it approached the bridge over the little river, and crew up to the long platform. Mr. Jordan stepped on board the first class coach, almost before the train came to a stadstill, while Mr. Hardie and Tom drew back among the crowd on the platform and watched the passengers alight. First came the commercial travellers and others bound for stations further west, who thronged from the train, jostling one another in their anxiety to get across the platform and to the nearby hotel, to make the most of the twenty minutes allowed at Minnedosa for dinner, then, more leisurely and with many parcels, came those whose journey was at an end—and last, when Mr. Hardie and Tom were beginning to think the expected ones had not come, Mr. Jordan stepped down from the rear of the coach, followed by a young lady in a navy blue serge suit and a sailor hat.

'They've come alright, Jim; that's the schoolmarm, and there's the brother behind—she's a pretty trim figure—but the brother is English, sure enough—Norfolk jacket, knickerbockers, the national boots—come along, Jim, let's get it over' and Tom boldly shouldered his way through the throng to where Mr. Jordan and the newcomers were standing.

'How do you do, Mr. Dennis, it's very good of you to take so much trouble for us,' and Everyn gave Tom a frank and friendly smile as she shook hands, "and you, too, Mr. Hardie. Do you remember coming to the Swanson's for dinner one day when I was teaching up in Sweden?'

'Sure, I do, and when I saw Ole Swanson the other day and told him you were coming to our school this year, he was real vexed, and said the folks up in Sweden would feel like coming and stealing you back again.'

'Oh, they were always too good to me,' said Miss Raye laughing; 'I'm afraid they spoiled me—I hope you won't be disappointed when you find what a very ordinary person I am.'

'Oh, I don't think they are afraid of that,' said Mr. Jordan; 'now, come, I'll take you two over to the Rectory for lunch, and we'll be looking for you, Tom, in an hour or so, and here, Mr. Hardie, are the checks for the things.'

'All right, sir, we'll be along; Jim and I will get the baggage sorted out now,' and lifting his cap, Tom strode off down the platform, very relieved to get the introductoy scene safely over.

Tom's own business in town did not take him very long, and it wts well within the time appoined that he drove smartly up the side street to the Rectory and jumped out on the sidewalk by the Rectory gate. He had just finished tying the mare up to a post when a boy of thirteen or so, who had been working in the garden, came running up.

'Hello, Tad, how are you to-day? Say, will you run in and tell your father that I am here—are they ready to start?'

'Good afternoon, Mr. Dennis, won't you come in? I don't think they've finished their lunch yet. Mother asked Dad why he didn't bring you and Mr. Hardie over with him, but Dad always gets rattled when anyone comes from the Old Country.'

'Oh, that's alright, Tad, Jim and I had dinner over at the hotel before the train came in—no, I won't come in; I'll just wait around for a while. How does the gardening go?'

'Oh, I guess it goes alright for those that are fond of it,' said Tad, quite without enthusiasm. 'I'm not struck on it myself—on a Saturday when it's supposed to be a holiday—it's not so bad on a school day. I never can think why Dad wants such a big garden—we

TO THE MINISTER OF TELEPHONES
EDMONTON, ALBERTA

Sir:—

The undersigned, ratepayers and electors of the District of Ribstone, No 421, and of the district further south, feel the necessity of having a telephone line built between Chauvin and Provost, running directly North and South between the two points; and we believe that this line should be a Government line, and that such a line would be of material benefit to the Province as a whole, and especially to the two points and the district between. There are practically enough poles lying at Chauvin, the property of the Department, right now, to build this line, and we lead to believe some years ago, that it would be built.

We earnestly submit this matter to your early consideration and hope to have your reply in the immediate future.

JOHN DEERE WHEEL PLOW

With QUICK DETACHABLE SHARES
Unscrew One Nut—That's All

The latest improvement on John Deere Sulky and Gang Plows is the JOHN DEERE QUICK DETACHABLE SHARE. Unscrew one Nut and the share comes off. Slip Share on, tighten the one nut and you are ready to work. Shares on or off quick—That's the Idea.

Here are some of the advantages of the "Q. D." Shares.

Ordinary shares have three or four bolt holes near the top. Q.D. shares have only one—near the middle. Consequently Q. D. shares are strong, where bolted shares are weak.

Q. D. shares fit tightly to the moldboard at every point of contact. They are held in place by even and well distributed pressure. No unequal strains as on old style bolted shares.

A dull Q. D. share can be replaced with another in the time taken to get the tools and plow ready for old style bolted shares.

The share can be removed in 30 seconds and replaced in 60 seconds. It takes from eight minutes to half an hour to change old style shares.
